Landshop

Frontend Developer (Freelance)

As a valued member of the frontend team at Landshop, an estate management system, I played an integral role in shaping the platform's user interface and experience. My primary responsibilities involved working on the mobile responsiveness of the site, ensuring that users could seamlessly interact with and navigate the platform across various devices.

Additionally, I actively contributed to the integration of APIs, leveraging them to enhance the functionality and connectivity of Landshop. This involvement not only improved the overall performance of the estate management system but also played a crucial part in providing users with a more efficient and feature-rich experience.
